➲ All departments	Annex F of the Contract Specifications for Futures Contracts and Options Contracts at Eurex Deutschland and Eurex Zürich (Contract Specifications), effective 10 June 2013

Eurex Exchange launched its new trading architecture in production on 3 December 2012. During the product migration phase, more products will be activated on the new trading architecture in a stepwise approach. As of start of trading on the migration date, the migrated products can only be traded on the new trading architecture and will no longer be tradable on the current Eurex® production system.

The next and final step of the product migration will take place on 10 June 2013. As all products will be traded on the new trading architecture from 10 June 2013 onwards, Annex F ("Products on the new trading architecture") of the Contract Specifications will no longer be applicable.

Please note that the migration of all remaining Fixed Income products is now scheduled to take place on 10 June 2013.

A csv file containing the current list of products to be migrated is available on the Eurex website www.eurexchange.com for download under the following path:

Technology > New trading architecture > System Documentation > Production

In addition, please note that orders (including GTC or GTD orders) in affected products that exist in the current Eurex® production system on the business day prior to migration (end-of-business) will not be migrated to the new trading architecture but will be deleted.
